My Dear Friend,

I thank you so much for your letter of the 25th, which came yesterday. Yes, to be sure, evil does try to exchange us from God, and from the knowledge of Him that Christian Science has brought to us. The way, wherever and seeming existence and power of these many shapes and forms that evil takes, puzzles me, I frankly admit I cannot understand it all, and find it hard to account in consequence. I thoroughly and honestly know the unreality of all these evils and their claims on human nature, and still I suffer more than, and their impact. I have not asked any practitioners here to help me, so far, though I have suffered, and do suffer a great deal. I have tried to beat it, so as to see exactly what the practitioners actually can and does do for me. I have the intention of taking your advice, and ask Mr Richardson to write for me, in fact I was let up yesterday evening about 7.30, but did not find it at home; shall try again. When I look at my own case, I am also thinking of your case; without in any way being selfrighteous, surely I am justified in saying that we both try our best to be loving and kind and helpful towards our fellowships, and why, oh why, is it that we are not better? Well, it is always difficult to tell about yourself, but when I am doing it for me, I do it, because these thoughts come and come again and again, and I cannot find a satisfactory answer for them. All I can find to counter these questions with is what has been said about human existence, viz: human existence is an enigma - perfectly true, of course, but it does not answer the question: why is it so?

My dear friend

I have for some time been thinking of writing you, but have been so busy that I could not find time. I have been very much interested in the progress of the cause, and I am glad to hear that you are still active in it. I have been thinking of writing you for some time, but have been so busy that I could not find time. But the same kind of design must have presented themselves to you from time to time, and I dare say, your mind probably much the same? :-

You ask me about the being for that I sent you. I shall tell you what I know, and what I do not know about this ware. The Chinese call this ware, like so many others, merely Lung ware; the reason being that the objects being thus designated are so named but the original names - if they originally had any special name, have in the course of time, got lost. Tzu Chou is as far as I know, a place of manufacture of different kinds of ware, in Honan province, and for the oldest times down to the present day. Hobson in his book on Porcelain mentions many wares as Tzu Chou - ware, and what justice I cannot say. I fancy this certification of so many different kinds as Tzu Chou. ware, was only started here we, through systematic and scientific excavations in China - and this is but a matter of time - shall be in a position to certify these objects more correctly. Of course, a new name or other name, would just as well, so any new certification will in no way interfere with our appreciation of these objects. To come back here: Hobson calls this ware Tzu Chou ware, and so we do likewise, for the time being. It is very nice - the genuine one, and I had not seen any like I got there from the Emperor. They had been present to some of the banks, and I got them by ransacking them out by paying a bribe to the C. Anybody important is in a better case. I think there anything that you can get on the market, because only the very best things were sent to, and kept in the Palace: as you will also observe in your picture rolls. I searched another part I had

is a luminous-man from America, when I was in Italy, and asked him if he had seen any of this kind in America, and he said, yes, he had seen one piece at a dealer, in San Francisco; it was not so large nor so good as mine - which again was not as good as the pair that you have got - and the price was $3.000. I rec'd the price of the pair was about 10.000 at a dealer, and therefore passed the price of $6.000 for the pair on my invoice here as you will see from enclosed papers - which kindly return to me for the records here when you asked me to get you something for $800, I had first in mind to give you 2 medals, but when I came to look over the whole collection of what I had at this time, I concluded I wanted to give you something of the very best, and something that you did not have. Mr. Howe had me that Professor Bennett (Pompeii?) had taken a great liking to this pair, and he thought myself would them, so finally I made up my mind to let you have one. The price to you is neither more nor less than the $800 that you wanted to invest, for the one sent you. I shall, when I go back to China, try to pick up whatever information I can on this subject, and in due course of time, let you know. ✓

As Mr. F. I am placing his name and another friend in full charge of all the things that I have left at this time.

As regards the original collection, I am trying to form a committee of trustees of leading luminous-men here to take care of it for the future.
 Mr. F. will be chairman.

Always for so long. All loving and true thoughts and wishes to you, my dear friend, to a business man for business, that I was in a hurry, and what did it be but very much of the kind a business man would do, to get the best price for his goods; and in the same way, I have no doubt, you will do the same, and I am sure you will find that for the price you are paying, you are getting the best of the goods, and that is all that I want to say. I am sure you will find that the price you are paying is for the best of the goods, and that is all that I want to say.

The price of the goods is $1.00 per pound. I have filled in the price for a business man, but I am sure you will find the price of the goods is $1.00 per pound, and I am sure you will find that the price you are paying is for the best of the goods, and that is all that I want to say. I am
